- 1. The function of Glavpromatroy was to construct hydroelectric stations, factories, plants, and similar enterprises. In addition, it furnished all the econom labor for the atomic energy program. Work in uranium mines, which was done 25X1 solely by forced labor, could come under both Delstroy. and Glavpromatroy.
- 2. In the for north Glavpromstroy might construct a factory; but, because it was in the for north, Dalstroy would also have juridiction. The latter would supervise those recruited for work, while Glavpromstroy would have responsibility for the construction of the factory itself.
- 3. The following is an example of Glavpromstroy s function: A coal mine opens in a new area. The initial steps are conducted by Glavpromstroy, which has signed a contract with GULAG for the employment of prisoners. The initial construction is carried out by these prisoners and, after the first stage is finished, volunteer workers are brought in and continue the job.

- Army had some construction troops in the MVD (stroitelnyve voyska), and the Army had some construction battalions. The MVD construction units frequently changed their nomenclature and were subordinated to the MGB or MVD as required. Many of the MVD construction workers were employed in building the Moscow University. The builders of the University concluded an agreement with the MVD to obtain the services of a battalion for six months. After they finished that work, there was then an agreement with someone else and the battalion took on another job. The use of the MVD battalion in building the University had to be arranged by Government decree, since the MVD does not normally assign its construction battalions to civilian organizations but uges them for its own purposes.
